THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Millicent Mimwag, round and fat,
With a pretty plump face
'neath a big sun hat,
As the flowers in her garden were feeling hot,
Was giving them drinks from a watering pot.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Bulgy Bill chanced to be passing near,
And when he saw Milly
he said, "Oh, dear,
That beautiful maid, 'tis plain to see,
Would make a very nice wife for me."

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

He trotted up with face so rosy
And gave Miss Milly a charming posy, Saying, "Milly, dear, no longer tarry,
For Bulgy Bill you must surely marry."

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Now Bulgy had a terrible foe,

Whose name was Jealous
Jungle Joe.

His heart was filled with bitter hate,

For he also wished to be Milly's mate.

HE CHALLENGED HIM TO MORTAL FIGHT.

(see page 5)

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

He followed Bulgy home one night

And tried to get him in a fight.

He hit him hard upon his head

And bit his nose until it bled.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

They fought all day, they fought all night,
And many came to watch
the fight,
And told them both to make their peace
And let their foolish battle cease.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

So next day these two silly things Stopped their fight, and, arms in slings,
They begged Miss Milly
please to state
Which of the two should be her mate.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Millicent, with a coachman tall,

Was going in her carriage to pay a call.

She blushed a most delightful pink,

Closed her eyes and tried to think.

GOING IN HER CARRIAGE TO PAY A CALL.

(see page 8)

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

“Listen,” cried she, “’tis plain your duty

To go and find the apple of beauty.

He who succeeds need ask no more,

For he shall win my sweet pink paw.”

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Jungle Joe wore a big thick coat,

And went o'er the sea in a sailing boat.

Where he was going he had no notion,

But he simply longed to cross the ocean.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

As he leaned o'er the boat and gazed into the sea,
He yelled "There's the apple!
How lucky for me!"
What he saw was a sunfish,
so golden and round,
And in trying to grab it, he slipped and was drowned.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

A mermaid found him, and said "You poor man,
I'll make you as comfy as ever
I can;"

Then buried him deep in the soft ocean bed,
With a nice crown of coral placed over his head.

A MERMAIDEN FOUND HIM.

(see page 12)

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Bulgy Bill thought he would travel by land,
He didn't like sea, and he didn't like sand;
He walked on and on, with his poor aching feet, Thirsty, and longing for something to eat.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Then suddenly Bulgy, with the greatest of glee,
Saw standing before him a fine jam-pot tree.

The jam-pots were frightened, and one of them cried, “Go away, go away, or from you, I will hide.”

SAW STANDING BEFORE HIM A FINE JAM-POT TREE.

(see page 14)

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

But Bulgy was hungry, and feeling the heat,
He made no reply, but just tickled their feet.
He tickled them so, that they went into fits,
And one laughed itself silly,
and broke into bits!

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Some soldiers were near, and hearing their cries, Took hold of Bulgy, who gasped with surprise.
They tied up his nose, and his poor little paws,
And put him in prison for breaking their laws.

THEY PUT HIM IN PRISON FOR BREAKING THEIR LAWS.

(see page 16)

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

“He has stolen our jam,” a big soldier said,
And Bulgy felt sorry and then hung his head.
They gave him sharp digs with the points of their spears,
And hurt him so much that he shed a few tears.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Away they all dragged him, through street after street, Where the stones were so rough that they hurt his poor feet.
He cried and he howled, till his tears were all shed,
And he wished himself home in his warm little bed.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Then Bulgy was taken away for his trial,

The judge and the jury would take no denial.

They swore he had certainly stolen the jam,

And had eaten as much as he really could cram.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

The judge and the jurymen sat down to think,
Before they started to write down in ink
What ought to be done with a fellow so bad,
Who had gobbled the jam as Bulgy Bill had.

AS THEY CONSIDERED, MORE GRIM GREW
THEIR LOOKS.

(see page 21)

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

They looked up the case in their old lawyer books,
And as they considered more grim grew their looks;
Then all shut their eyes and gave a deep sigh,
And told our dear Bulgy he surely must die.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

The sobs of poor Bulgy soon rent the still air,
And he begged on his knees that his life they would spare.
But nothing he did, nor nothing
he said,
Could change the jury—their hearts were of lead.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

The headsman so tall, with a big cruel hatchet,
In an awful black mask, and a coat just to match it,
Said to him, "Bulgy, you soon will be dead,
I am just going to chop off your little young head."

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Then poor Bulgy trembled and quivered with fear,
And down each fat cheek rolled a bright shining tear.
He turned his eyes upwards,
quite ready for death,
And murmured sweet Milly's name under his breath.

HE TURNED HIS EYES UPWARDS, QUITE READY FOR DEATH,

(see page 24)

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

But just as he sobbed his last feeble cry,
Expecting most any minute
to die,
A witch came a-riding straight down through the sky,
And seized hold of Bulgy to make a nice pie.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

She rode off with Bulgy behind on her steed, Smacking her lips with most horrible greed,
Far over the tree tops for mile after mile,
Till even the sun could not keep back a smile.

SHE RODE OFF WITH BULGY BEHIND ON HER STEED.

(see page 26)

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

So the headsman went home without earning his pay,
For the witch had quite spoiled all his fun for the day.
The creatures all round stood with eyes full of fear, Thinking it all was decidedly queer.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

The witch after riding for hours on the broom,
At last arrived safe in her own little room.

She made a good fire and took a large pot,
And filled it with water to get nice and hot.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

While the water was boiling, the day being fine,
The witch washed some clothes,
which she hung on the line;
And while hanging them out
'neath the bright summer sky,
She laughed as she thought of her Bulgy Bill Pie.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Now a Wonkey next door, who was hungry for meat,
And felt he would like something tasty to eat, Spied the witch, who looked tempting, though not very fat,
And gobbled her up, starting off with her hat.

HE GOBBLED HER UP, STARTING OFF WITH HER HAT. (see page 30)

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Bulgy Bill cried so many tears of delight

On seeing this truly remarkable sight.

He thanked the big Wonkey, took hold of his paw

And shook it until he could shake it no more.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Then into the garden he trotted full swing,

And found there a rather peculiar thing.

Two apples there grew on a marvelous tree,

Guarded by these funny creatures you see.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

When Bulgy announced that the witch was now dead, Each creature for joy stood for hours on its head.

Then Bulgy so happily picked the ripe fruit,
And, watching his chance, ran away with his loot.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Without peeling the apple he took a huge bite, He'd had nothing to eat since the previous night;
And he looked, as he ate, in the pond at his feet,
For he felt very dirty, but longed to be neat.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

And, lo! as he gazed on his reflection,

He saw that his looks had gained perfection,

And cried, "At last I have done
my duty,

This is indeed the apple of beauty."

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Then away up the garden path
he pranced,
He was so overjoyed he simply danced;
And as he jumped and skipped along,
He raised his voice in happy song.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

In the witch's kitchen, behind the door,

What do you think our Bulgy saw?

Why! Sacks and sacks of precious gold,

Each with as much as it could hold.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Cried Bulgy, "This is wonderful luck!

First the apple I find and pluck,

And now these sacks of dollars you see,

Have made me as happy as I can be.

HE SET OFF HOME ON A HANDSOME STEED.

(see page 39)

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

In his cap he stuck a feather,
And all the sacks he tied together,
Then set off home on a handsome steed,
Feeling he'd done a wonderful deed.

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Millicent, with an anxious face,
Greeted him with fond embrace, Saying, "Bulgy, dear, I thought you dead;
Would you could see the tears
I shed."

SO BULGY AND MILLY WERE MARRIED
NEXT DAY.

(see page 42)

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

Then Bulgy showed his precious prize,
And Milly gazed with wondering eyes,
And cried, "Oh, clever, darling
Bill,
Marry me soon as ever you will."

THE ADVENTURES OF BULGY BILLY

So Bulgy and Milly were married next day,
And both looked most charming,
So all the folk say.
Thus the tale ends with rejoicing and laughter,
And they both very happily lived ever after.
